DETAILED ACTION

Applicants' response filed 11/25/2008 was received. Claims 28, 29, and 36 are pending.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 28, 29, and 36 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over US 6,527,938 to Bates et al. in view of US 6,099,562 to Ding et al.

Claim 28 requires a method of coating an implantable device by applying a composition thereto. The composition itself comprises a first block copolymer (SIBS is the elected block copolymer) and a biobeneficial polymer conjugated to the first block copolymer. The specification, at pages 9 and 10, states that the biobeneficial polymer may be PEG. Claim 29 further requires an active agent, and claim 36 requires that the device be a stent

The teachings of Bates were discussed above.

What is lacking is a teaching of a biobeneficial component conjugated to the first block copolymer.

Ding teaches the advantageous of immobilizing PEG on a polymer coated stent. Example 2. The resulting polymer is useful for making a drug eluting stent with agents such as heparin.

Art Unit: 1618

It would have been prima facie obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to immobilize PEG on at least part of the SIBS of Bates (thus coating with a biobeneficial component conjugated to the first block copolymer in addition to the first block copolymer). Obviousness stems from Ding's teaching of advantages stemming from this manipulation. Because Ding teaches how to perform this type of manipulation, the artisan would enjoy a reasonable expectation of success.

Conclusion

No claims are allowed.

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
